EMAC Job Market Training 2027

Call for applications

To support PhD candidates and Postdoc researchers that will enter the academic job market in 2027, EMAC will organize a job market training on May 25, 2027 at the EMAC Spring Conference in LUISS University, Rome.

The event will takes place on Tuesday, May 25th in the afternoon (13h-17h) at the conference venue immediately after the Doctoral Colloquium and prior to the conference opening reception. All PhDs in their final year and Postdocs that aim for an international academic career in Marketing and that will be on the jobmarket in 2027 are encouraged to apply.

Format

Applicants will receive written feedback from experienced researchers on their job market application package prior to the training. During the training, they have the opportunity to present their research to a small group of attendants and engage in a trial interview with the coaches. We plan to organize 2 tracks, one for CB-oriented researchers and one for quant-oriented researchers.

Application

- A motivation letter from the job market candidate that outlines: why you want to participate in the training; status of the PhD work; your career ambitions; and what you would like to learn from the job market training.
- Curriculum vitae (incl. PhD coursework)
- Letter of support from your advisor
- Job market paper (include only one paper that is not yet accepted for publication; it can be updated till the workshop.)

Deadline for sending in all application materials: February 15th, 2027 16:00 CET.

Submission link: https://www.xcdsystem.com/emac/abstract/index.cfm?ID=b0vaIj8

The training is free for job market candidates that registered for the EMAC Spring Conference. Other participants will pay a fee of €80 to participate in the event.

If you have questions on submitting your entry, please contact Anne-Laure Marteaux, EMAC Executive Officer (almarteaux@emac.academy).